

purchased Big Machine Records, including the masters of her albums under the label.^[164] Swift said that Big Machine would allow her to acquire the masters only if she exchanged one new album for each older one under a new contract, which she refused to sign.^[164] In November 2020, Swift began re-recording her back catalog, which would enable her to control the licensing of her songs for commercial use.^[165]

In February 2020, Swift signed a global publishing deal with Universal Music Publishing Group after her 16-year contract with Sony/ATV expired.^[166] Amidst the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020, Swift surprise-released two "sister albums" that she recorded and produced with Antonoff and Aaron Dessner: Folklore on July 24, and Evermore on December 11.^[167] Joe Alwyn co-wrote and co-produced several songs under the pseudonym William Bowery.^[168] Both albums incorporate muted, atmospheric indie folk and indie rock sounds with orchestrations;^{[169][170]} each was supported by three singles catering to US pop, country, and triple A radio formats. The singles were "Cardigan", "Betty", and "Exile" from Folklore, and "Willow", "No Body, No Crime", and "Coney Island" from Evermore.^[171] Folklore and "Cardigan" made Swift the first artist to debut a number-one album and a number-one song in the same week in the US; she achieved the feat again with Evermore and "Willow".^[172]

Swift won Artist of the Year at the American Music Awards in 2020^[173] and Album of the Year for Folklore at the 63rd Annual Grammy Awards in 2021, becoming the first woman to win the Grammy Award for Album of the Year three times.^[174] She played Bombalurina in the film adaptation of Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical Cats (2019), for which she co-wrote and recorded the original song "Beautiful Ghosts".^[175] The documentary Miss Americana, which chronicled parts of Swift's life and career, premiered at the 2020 Sundance Film Festival and received positive reviews.^{[176][177]}

2021–2023: Re-recordings and Midnights

Swift released two re-recorded albums in 2021: Fearless (Taylor's Version) in April and Red (Taylor's Version) in November. Both peaked atop the Billboard 200, and the former was the first re-recorded album to do so.^[178] The latter helped Swift surpass Shania Twain as the female musician with the most weeks at number one on the Top Country Albums chart.^[179] The song "All Too Well (Taylor's Version)" from Red (Taylor's Version) became the longest song in history to top the Billboard Hot 100.^{[180][181]}

Swift's tenth album, Midnights, was released on October 21, 2022.^[182] Midnights was Swift's fifth album to open atop the Billboard 200 chart with US first-week sales of one million. Its tracks, led by the single "Anti-Hero", made her the first artist to occupy the entire top 10 of the Billboard Hot 100 the same week.^[183] The album peaked atop the charts of at least 14 other countries, including Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Norway, and Sweden.^[184] Two other singles, "Lavender Haze" and "Karma", both peaked at number two on the Billboard Hot 100.^[185]
